The first is that I am including a file to be able to use the activerecord modules. The second is that I also have a simple_form_for on top of my views/controller. If I comment out the script, I still get the error, and if I leave it as it is, I don't see the name error that I do when running rails in the ruby script. Can someone tell me how I can get rid of it? I am trying to make my ruby script a rails app. Thanks in advance A: In my case the problem is a typo in the file I was including and that is not auto reloaded. Global Companies Must Succeed in China China is seen as an emerging global manufacturing powerhouse, but there is a catch. Companies located in the U.S. or other mature economies have to re-engineer their business models and operations if they hope to survive in a market that will soon be among the world's biggest customers. These companies must learn to compete on a global stage, and that is not easy. As of May 2009 e79caf774b
