It's free and open source so you can download it and play it on any PC with a . This is my new thread. This is the biggest issue with the parties. I still don't have any and I can't even get the final party kit I ordered online. The day of the event could be a disaster if I can't find a solution. I am throwing the party on Veteran's Day and have 20 people coming with me. No one can get here on Veteran's Day so I am asking for some help. Can anyone help me out? It appears you've posted in the wrong thread, as the party kits thread is still closed. My husband and I are planning a trip to Michigan next month for a client's 50th. I don't think we have read this thread, as there are a lot of posts. I did find this one, and there were suggestions about add-ons we might try. I hope it helps you The inspiration for my party kit idea came from a year-end report I wrote about my wedding. I went to Paris for the exhorbitant price of only $100. I bought a few fun gifts, one of which was a $50 customized umbrella. I would like to see my kit provided at a similar price. I have been looking into this to some degree. Here is the gist. I would order the entire kit, then send each guest what they need plus some things they want. If I was to order it now, it would probably be approximately $85 a person. The cost of the equipment included would be $65 and the cost of printing and shipping would be $15. If I rented the venue (as opposed to my friend renting his), I would figure it to be $85 per person. That would bring the total to $160 for the equipment and $20 for shipping. Anyway, I would order the kit today. I am trying to get the headcount right, so I am working on that. I would recommend some of the following for the theme. 1. Americana 2. Scrapbook 3. Shaker 4. Rustic
