Using the rotate tool When you need to rotate an image, use the Rotate command. Choose Layer from the tool's drop-down menu and then select Rotate from the menu that appears. The Rotate dialog box appears and then tells you that the selected object contains multiple layers. Click OK and then select any layers (shown in Figure 10-9) that you want to rotate from the Layers dialog box that appears. In the Rotate dialog box, the top two fields are the same. The first field is the amount of rotation, and the next field tells you if you need to flatten the image, as shown in Figure 10-10. On the X axis, click the number next to the +/-Rotate

A Philadelphia police officer was found not-guilty today in the fatal shooting of a father who was returning home from the store with his family. Officer Richard Haste was acquitted in the 2010 shooting death of 26-year-old Ronald Wilson. The jury in the case deliberated for less than two hours before finding Haste not guilty of all charges, including involuntary manslaughter and first-degree murder. "I hope the families can get on with life," Judge Kathryn Nevins said as she dismissed the jury. "The jury found two credible witnesses more reliable than the police testimony," said Ronald Wilson's family attorney, Rolando Garcia. "Haste shot an unarmed father. We are satisfied there is no place for the police in our neighborhoods." Haste's attorney, Joseph Frolik, said his client "is a very good and capable police officer who was not indicted for murder in a very traumatic and terrible event." "He will now be able to get back to his career and serve the citizens of Philadelphia with the respect that they deserve," Frolik said. Ronald Wilson Sr. was shot in the thigh and shoulder after being called over to the police line at a store near his 28th Street home. He was charged with aggravated assault, criminal attempt to commit murder and weapons violations. Haste told investigators that the 10-year veteran was concerned about "a fight that was starting in the street" and said he shot the man as he pointed a gun at him. The present invention relates to an apparatus for moving a robot, an apparatus for manufacturing an optical element, and a robot arm. Japanese Patent Laid-Open No. 2007-220092 describes a technology in which a robot is moved using a method in which the robot is moved using combination of linear motors and rotary motors each of which is composed of a stator and a movable element. According to the technology, a linear motor is provided with a guide rail, a movable element is slidably supported on the guide rail, and the movable element is moved by applying a driving force to the movable element. In addition, a rotary motor is disposed on the movable element and a rotation driving shaft is disposed on the movable element to be in direct contact with the rotary motor. By applying a driving force to the rotation driving shaft, the rotary motor

Q: How to search for a number? I want to know how to find a number in a string and then perform some action on that number. For instance if I had the string "3601 is a number" and I wanted to find the number 3,601 then I wanted to use find() to find this number then I wanted to save that number as a variable, setCards, and then print it on screen. I'm thinking something like this: a = input("3601 is a number ") setCards = a.find('3') a = a[setCards+6:len(a)] print a A: a = input("3601 is a number ") # c = a.find('3') # a = a[c:c+7] print a #!/bin/sh # # Copyright (c) 2020 Wildbit Inc. # All rights reserved. # # This code is free software; you can redistribute it and/or modify # it under the terms of the GNU General Public License as published by # the Free Software Foundation; either version 2 of the License, or # (at your option) any later version. # # Licenced under GNU AGPL version 3 or later. # # Checks for relevant tags for the given zone. # # The message is returned if one or more tag set are missing or incomplete.
