Gameplay features include using fluid motions, firing with full speed and timing accuracy, improved ball physics to replicate real-world flight, and more dynamic dribbling. The impact to the game is visible as players feel more involved and connected to the action, which is more accurately reflected in game models of the physical world. In addition to connectivity, gameplay features that impact the physicality and realism of football include setting line break tackles, playing a unique hybrid FUT style – combining FUT and UEFA philosophies – highly skilled FIFA Street players, and a new Take-On Behaviour System (TOBS) that allows players to tackle in a variety of ways. FIFA 22 also contains key changes that make gameplay quicker, more fluid and smarter. “Evolving the Player Model” Players’ movement on the pitch will feel smoother in the upcoming game. The way they run and manoeuvre around the pitch is more realistic. Smart improvements to the rigid player model have been made, resulting in more connected, responsive controls. For instance, the newly refined Player Impact Engine (PIE) allows players to better manoeuvre and jump around the pitch and react to the physicality of the environment. The new PIE allows players to properly respond to the physicality of the environment, making the individual player more responsive to surroundings. The PIE is fully simulated and gives players more freedom in how they can get around a pitch and act like a real-life player. On-the-ball data will be used to calculate an appropriate angle in which players can receive passes or be tackled, and the pace at which the player runs around the pitch will be changed depending on his positioning on the field. Improved physics, AI and graphics Players will feel less robotic and more consistent. Improved characters and animations make players react naturally. Players move fluidly, and at full speed. A more natural ball physics engine is used on the pitch, which results in the ball behaving in the same way as in real-life. FIFA 22 is the most beautiful football game to date, using the Frostbite engine which delivers great visual fidelity. The Frostbite engine has revolutionised the way football games look and plays. The game features fully customizable player and kit kits. New player creation tools are included with FIFA 22.
